

Women in the World Summit & Emma Bonino

(March 05, 2011)

Thusday March 10 marks the beginning of the second edition of the Women in the World Summit in New York, an event that gathers women worldwide committed to the fight against gender discrimination. The goal is to raise international awareness and take a strong stand in issues regarding women around the world. Italy will be represented by Emma Bonino

The event is organized by The Newseek Daily Beast Company [2]. Important names among the participants are Hillary and Bill Clinton, Condoleezza Rice, Madeleine Albright, the director of UN

Women Michelle Bachelet, the president of the Rockefeller Foundation Judith Rodin, the president of the Goldman Sachs Foundation Dina Habib Powell, the director of the World Bank Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, and many female journalists, actresses, senators and judges.

Italy will be represented by Emma Bonino, who for years has been committed in campaigns in favor of women in the Middle East and Northern Africa, where fighting for these values can mean being in great danger.

Bonino supported the signing of the Maputo Protocol on rights for African women, she collaborated with the Yemenese government and the NGO "Nessuna pace senza giustizia" in organizing the first Regional Intergovernmental Conference of the Arab world on "Democracy, human rights and the role of the International Penal Court", supporting the participation of women to political life and elections; she collaborated with the Afghan activists at the first international conference entitled "Donne in marcia per l'Afghanistan"; she visited Iraq after the fall of the Saddam Hussein regime, meeting with the associations of women, who are still fighting to be able to vote; she also fights for the elimination of female gender mutilation.

Emma Bonino comes from a long career as an activist for human rights and women rights which began in 1976, the year of her first election with the Radical Party. It was an era of battles for civil rights and Bonino had collaborated with the CISA - the Center for Information, Sterilization and Abortion.

Acid violence is a serious and growing problem particularly in South and East Asia and parts of Africa. Approximately 80% of victims are female. Almost half are under 18 years of age. Most often the crime is related to domestic disputes, adultery or as a form of revenge for refusal of sexual advances, proposals of marriage and demands for dowry. This segment explores the dreadful impact and root causes of this gender-based form of violence as well as the impetus for adopting and implementing new and effective laws that regulate the availability of acid and provide victim with access to justice.

Note: This panel will contain graphic images of acid violence victims.

- o Dr. Ebby Elahi, Director, Fifth Avenue Eye Associates and the Virtue Foundation
