

Semifreddo al Torroncino

EATALY MAGAZINE (July 03, 2019)

Torino is known for its desserts, such as its namesake torrone, Italy's answer to nougat, and dark chocolate. A crowd pleaser this traditional chilled dessert features both.

Yield: 4 servings

4½ ounces hazelnut torrone, chopped into crumbs
3½ ounces dark chocolate, chopped
3 large egg yolks
1¼ cups heavy cream

1/3 cup sugar

Combine the sugar with 1/3 cup water in a saucepan, and bring to a boil. Pour the mixture over the egg yolks in a separate bowl, and whisk until cool.

Whip $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of the cream to soft peaks in a small bowl. Fold this and the torrone into the yolk mixture.

Pour into a loaf pan, smoothing the top. Cover in plastic wrap, and freeze until firm, at least 8 hours.

Scald the remaining cream in a small saucepan, and whisk in the chocolate. Place about 1 tablespoon of this chocolate sauce on each plate. Cut the still-chilled semifreddo into 4 slices, and place 1 slice over the chocolate sauce.

Buon appetito!

This recipe was first published courtesy of Eataly Magazine [2].

Find the original recipe here [3].

Get a taste of torrone for yourself at Eataly Chicago's Torrone Party on Saturday, December 17! Learn more [4].

Source URL: <http://ftp.ility.org/magazine/dining-in-out/eataly-magazine/article/semifreddo-al-torroncino>

Links

[1] <http://ftp.ility.org/files/semifreddo-torroncino-torronejpg>

[2] <https://www.eataly.com>

[3] http://This recipe was first published courtesy of Eataly Magazine. Find the original recipe here.

[4] https://www.eataly.com/us_en/stores/chicago/torrone-party/